

The graph illustrates the consumer's optimal choice between two goods. The vertical axis represents the quantity of consumer goods (消費財), and the horizontal axis represents the quantity of free goods (自由財). The budget line is a straight line connecting the two axes. The indifference curves are convex to the origin. The optimal consumption bundle is at the point where the budget line is tangent to the highest indifference curve.

