

The top graph illustrates the relationship between the number of people (personnel) and time for different types of work. The y-axis is labeled 'Personnel' (personnel) and the x-axis is labeled 'Time' (time). The curves show that for some work types, the number of people required increases over time, while for others, it decreases or remains constant.

The bottom graph illustrates the relationship between the number of people (personnel) and time for different types of work. The y-axis is labeled 'Personnel' (personnel) and the x-axis is labeled 'Time' (time). The curves show that for some work types, the number of people required increases over time, while for others, it decreases or remains constant.

